Cool New Amenities and a Jetbridge at Anchorage Airport

(ANCHORAGE, Alaska) – Next time you pass through the Ted Stevens Anchorage International Airport (ANC) you'll be happy to find new cell phone charging stations, new and improved recycling receptacles, and a new jet bridge!

The airport is pleased to offer these new amenities and continues to look for ways to increase customer satisfaction. "As the Gateway to Alaska, ANC is the first or last impression for millions of travelers," says Jim Szczesniak, Airport Manager, "we strive to provide the residents and visitors of Alaska a positive airport experience that they are happy to share, and do our part to support the business and tourism industry."

Next time you're traveling through ANC look for the new charging stations – there are 16 of them throughout the airport.

Gate C8 now has a jet bridge. No longer will passengers have to board and disembark outside. "It's just in time for the holidays and the winter season," said Wes Freimuth, Station Operations Manager, Alaska Airlines.

"Recycling has never been easier at ANC," said Szczesniak, "With one receptacle we can collect all three recyclables (aluminum, plastic, and paper)."

Recycling Tip: Contaminated items cannot be recycled. Empty cups and bottles before recycling them, and throw away contaminated food wrappers.

Wi-fi improvement project has hit another milestone. Upgrades make it easier to connect to free wi-fi and achieve seamless service throughout the terminals. It is an ongoing project.

IT Tip: To receive the best wi-fi experience passengers should connect to TSAIA_PUBLIC while checking in.

Ted Stevens Anchorage International Airport is an important gateway to the city of Anchorage and the State of Alaska. More than five million passengers fly through ANC annually. Ted Stevens Anchorage International Airport is responsible for approximately 15,577 airport & community jobs, earning $1 billion. That's 1 in 10 jobs in Anchorage.
